The aging population of Arizona consists over 16% of the total population during the last 2016 US government census. This has risen almost 3% since 2010 which means that more of the population is now covered by Medicare, the government sponsored health insurance program specifically for US senior citizens.

"Our seniors today gain a lot from the Medicare program, but the benefits still have gaps," insurance providers from both privately funded and government sponsored program say. This is true because the Original Medicare Part A or B still have gaps in their coverage which results in people using their own money to cover the expenses.

For senior citizens who usually no longer have a steady income stream and are often those that need extra health care services the cost of these out-of-pocket payments is too much. Many even dip into their retirement funds or life savings to pay medical bills that aren't shouldered by Medicare.

"What is Medigap?" You may find yourself asking this question. To simply put it, Medigap is a form of insurance that complements your existing Original Medicare Part A or Part B. Medicare gap in AZ covers other health care expenses such as coinsurance, copayments, deductibles, and even out-of-pocket costs.

"The ultimate goal of Medigap is to allow senior citizen access to reliable health care services they require at an affordable price," says an experienced Medigap Insurance agent.
